Cancer has a major impact on the workforce. In fact, the estimated cost in health care expenses and lost productivity from cancer in the United States is approximately $216.6 billion per year.* Show your workforce you are committed to their health and well-being by including information about reducing cancer risk and coping with cancer in your internal communications.

The Content Subscription Service gives you access to multiple toolkits every year. Each toolkit contains emails, newsletter inserts, links to videos and podcasts, quick tips, and social media messages on living a healthier lifestyle or dealing with a cancer diagnosis.

The messages include cancer-specific information, as well as messages to send year-round to encourage your employees to have recommended cancer screening tests, stop smoking, eat better, and be more physically active. This material can be tailored to fit the needs of any organization and is available well in advance of specific national health observance months.
